Cellular Respiration is a chemical process with the following equation: $C_6H_{12}O_6 + O_2 \rightarrow H_2O + CO_2$. All organisms, including those capable of photosynthesis, go through the process of cellular respiration. The overall reaction breaks down a carbohydrate, most frequently modeled by glucose, and converts the energy stored in that molecule into the most basic cellular energy, ATP.

Cellular Respiration | Unit 3: Cellular Energetics - AP ...

Adenosine triphosphate (ATP) is the main product of cellular respiration, and the molecular energy of the cell. Aerobic metabolism results in a much higher yield of these energy carrying molecules due to the fact that it can use oxygen as a final electron acceptor in the electron transport chain.

In cellular respiration, electrons are not transferred directly from glucose to oxygen. Each electron is coupled with a proton to form a hydrogen atom. Following the movement of hydrogens allows you to follow the flow of electrons. NAD^+ , a coenzyme, is the electron carrier that temporarily holds the hydrogens in the cell. Coenzymes are organic
